STATE OF UTAH
OFFICE OF THE GOVERNOR
SALT LAKE CITY

CALVIN L. RAMPTON
GOVERNOR

February 28, 1975

Welcome to Utah, the most uniquely spectacular of all these United States.

History and beauty can be found in every square mile of our state, and along our modern highways and interstates. Here you can explore range land where once prehistoric dinosaurs roamed or trace the path of ancient Indian tribes. You can follow the routes pioneers and explorers blazed through our mountains on their way to new lands and new discoveries.

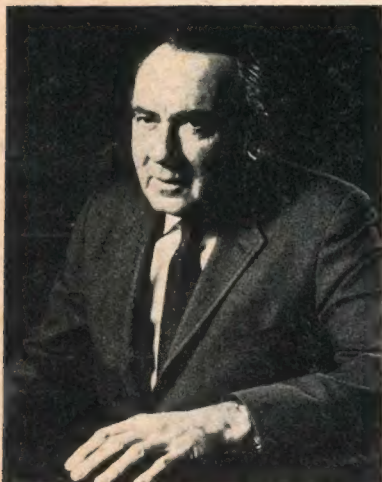

One-million-seventy-thousand fellow Utahns and I invite you and your family to hunt, fish, hike, ski, camp or just sight-see this magnificent state. We have five national parks, seven national monuments, two national recreation areas and 43 state parks waiting for you.

While you're here, slow down, take your time. You will conserve fuel by doing so and enjoy our great variety more.

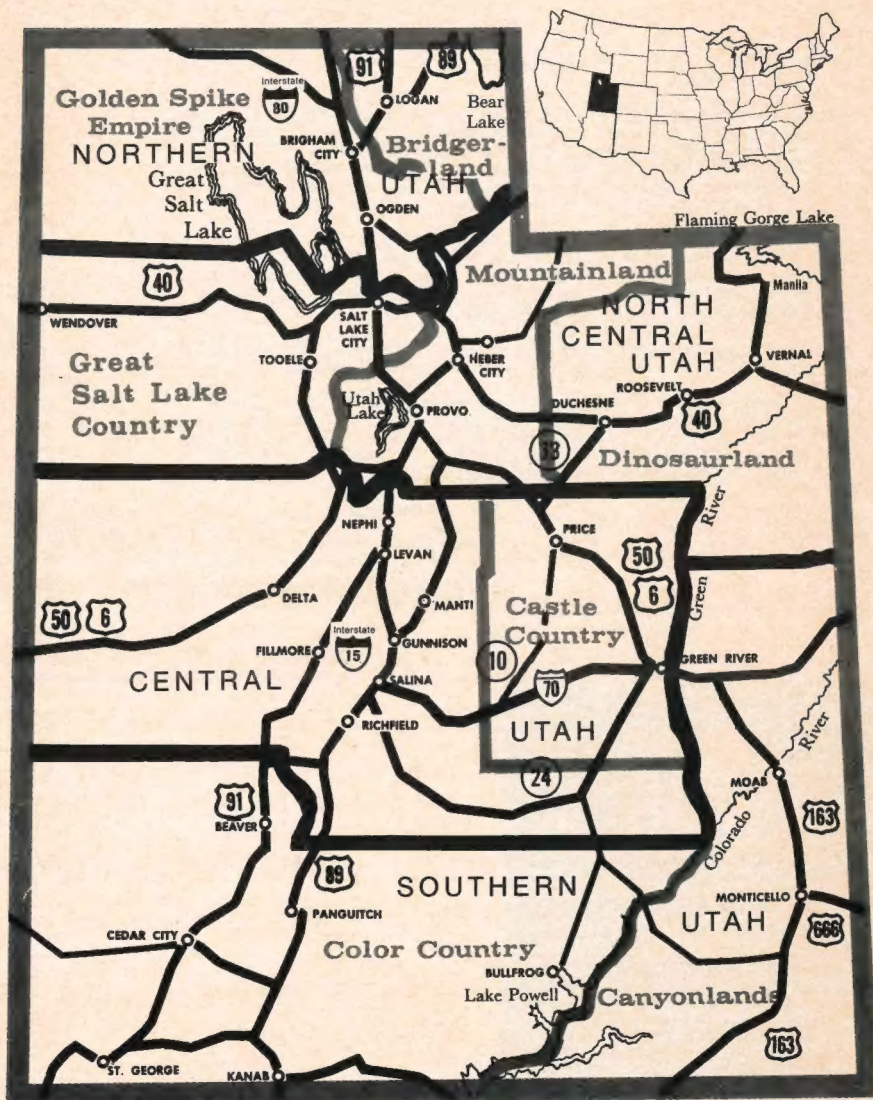

Please remember, this land--its resources and its unique and varied beauty--represents our future. We invite you to share our riches and discover Utah, but we also ask you to share our responsibility to protect and keep litter-free those things which have made our state so unique.

Sincerely,

Calvin L. Rampton
Calvin L. Rampton, Governor

You've found the place for a complete vacation—Utah. And the listings of accommodations, services and regional biographies contained in this travel directory will maximize your visit anywhere in the state. The jigsaw map defines Utah's NORTHERN, NORTH CENTRAL, CENTRAL and SOUTHERN quarters. Each section supports its own brand of Utah individuality, one area complementing the others and forming Utah's composite personality. Each section is further subdivided into regions such as Great Salt Lake Country in the NORTH CENTRAL quarter and Canyonlands in the SOUTHERN quarter.

Utah's largest travel guide—over 280,000 copies annually.

WHAT'S INSIDE

It is said that Ebenezer Bryce, discoverer of one of Utah's five National Parks, gazed upon the craggy flues and narrow canyons of the park that now bears his name and said to himself: "It's a helluva place to loose a cow."

Bryce's quip isn't the normal response of first-time visitors to Utah's many natural wonders, but its flavor is. Utah has so many varied visitor attractions in almost every part of her territory, a guide is helpful for planning and enriching the tourist's presence here.

This UTAH TRAVEL GUIDE is published to help you get the most out of your visit to Utah. While the GUIDE lists and points out locations of nearly all visitor attractions, details of these attractions are left to several other brochures published by the Utah Travel Council in order to keep this GUIDE easy to use and handy to carry with you.

Inside, beginning in the front, you'll find brief information about the state's history, geography, waterways, climate, liquor laws, transportation serving Utah, fishing and hunting regulations, recreation and resort areas, gem localities and rockhounding areas and a handy table showing the where, what, when and how of Utah's national parks, national monuments, national forests, campgrounds and recreation areas.

To help orient you to the state and its various regions, Utah has been divided into quarters (south to north)—SOUTHERN,

CENTRAL, NORTH CENTRAL and NORTHERN. Each quarter forms a west-to-east belt across the state as shown on the map opposite. In each quarter are two or three regions given names appropriate to their attractions.

THE UTAH TRAVEL GUIDE is organized according to the quarter areas and the regions within them. Starting at the southern end of the state, the SOUTHERN Quarter is composed of Canyonlands and Color Country; CENTRAL Utah has Panoramaland and Castle Country; NORTH CENTRAL comprises Great Salt Lake Country, Mountainland and Dinosaurland; NORTHERN Utah has Golden Spike Empire and Bridgerland.

As each of these regions is introduced in the GUIDE, there is a map, a capsule review of attractions and then alphabetical listings of towns and cities in that region. City listings include local visitor attractions, nearby attractions, available accommodations, services, golf courses, churches, radio stations, newspapers, restaurants, liquor stores and other valuable information.

From front to back in the GUIDE, the order of areas covered is south to north.

If you have comments or suggestions for this GUIDE or any other matters concerning how we can better serve visitors to Utah, please address them to THE UTAH TRAVEL COUNCIL, Council Hall, Capitol Hill, Salt Lake City, Utah 84114 or local Chambers of Commerce.

BACKGROUND

Utah is old. As old, to use a well-worn phrase, as the hills...specifically, the hills around Sheep Creek Canyon, which some scientists say date back two million years B.C. Man in Utah is also old, with traces of ancient cultures ranging from 10,000 B.C. in the Great Salt Lake area. Indian civilizations grew and fell in isolation periodically from that time until 1776, when Catholic Fathers Dominguez and Escalante explored the area while attempting to find an easy overland route from Santa Fe, New Mexico to Monterey, California.

The earliest settlement in Utah was probably Reed's Trading Post near Whiterocks in 1828. The Mormon pioneers entered the Valley of the Great Salt Lake on July 22, 1847. The territory of Utah was created on September 9, 1850. Utah became the 45th state on January 4, 1896. Today the state's population is well over one million. Population density is about 12 persons per square mile. These people live on 82,339 square miles of land and play on 2,557 square miles of water.

The state insignia is the Beehive. Its motto is "Industry," which is inscribed on the insignia. Other symbols of the state include its tree, which is the Blue Spruce; its flower, the Sego Lily; its bird, the Seagull and its stone, the Topaz.

Highest point in Utah is Kings Peak at 13,528 feet above sea level, located on the eastern limit of the High Uintas primitive area in the Ashley National Forest. The lowest point is 2,100 feet above sea level near St. George in the southwest corner of the state.

Almost three-fourths of all land in Utah is owned by the Federal Government, of which five per cent is Indian land. The state owns six per cent of Utah's land, and the remainder is privately held. Utah is divided into 29 counties varying in size from 268 square miles to 7,884 square miles.

Utah is a state of many waterways. Among the major rivers are the Colorado, Green, Bear, Weber, San Juan, Sevier, Virgin, Provo, Jordan, Duchesne, Fremont, Escalante, White and Price. Utah even sports a Dirty Devil River. Major lakes include the Great Salt Lake, Utah, Bear, Fish, Panguitch and Navajo.

Because much of the state is water poor and Utah is used as a repository for water stored for future use by not only this state but many others, we have many reservoirs. The largest of these reservoirs are Flaming Gorge, Lake Powell, Strawberry, Pineview, Scofield, Deer Creek, Willard, Rockport, Echo, East Canyon, (Yuba), Piute, Otter Creek, Steinaker and the Virgin. This brief list is by no means complete. One of the man-made reservoirs, Lake Powell, has a shoreline longer than the Pacific coastline of the United States—some 1,800 miles—when it is completely filled.

Utah has five National Parks, two National Recreational Areas, seven National Monuments, five National Historic Landmarks, eight National Forests, 43 State Parks and historic sites, and a wealth of other scenic and historic attractions for you to enjoy.

Many small roads to seldom-visited areas require four-wheel-drive vehicles all year-round. If doubt exists, check with the Utah State Highway Department and/or Patrol, local police, Tra-Vel and other visitor information centers, or local gas stations before attempting unfamiliar roads. Exercise caution when driving in mountain areas.

If you are involved in an accident involving bodily injury or damages in excess of $100, report must be made to city police, if the accident occurs within the limits of a city, or to county or state authorities in other areas.

There are many fine facilities and services available in the state. Wherever you enjoy the services listed in this book, please mention you discovered them through the UTAH TRAVEL GUIDE. Happy traveling.

CLIMATE

On the east side of northern Utah's Bear Lake lies the small town of Randolph. Besides being the seat of Rich County, Randolph is on record as the coldest area in the state, with a spirit thermometer reading of minus 65 degrees F. on January 14, 1888. If this is making you chilly, the state's record high temperature is 116 degrees F.

But don't let these extremes frighten you. Utah's climate, for the most part, is high, dry and sunny in the daytime and cool at night. Travelers will be at ease in the summer with only a sweater for cooler evenings. In the mountains on summer evenings, light jackets are advisable.

The citizens of the state consider its varied climate from season to season a boon. The November-April winter offers skiers from the world over the "Greatest Snow on Earth" at 14 resorts throughout the state. (See SKI RESORTS.) The April-October months are a time in Utah to stretch your muscles and enjoy summer recreational activities. Late September and all of October are good times to head into Utah's canyons to enjoy the brilliant fall colors. If you plan to hike into remote areas of the northern Utah mountains, remember that due to the altitude, the summer season there is much shorter than that of the lower areas.

The summer months are dry. Temperatures vary with the altitude. For example, Bryce Canyon at 9,000 ft. is always cool, while nearby Zion National Park at 4,000 ft. rarely gets cold. Generally speaking, northern Utah has a lower mean annual temperature than southern Utah, where golf courses stay open all year-round.

The average annual temperature ranges from 42 degrees F. in the northern mountains to 60 degrees F. average in southern Utah's Dixie. Of course, daily temperatures will average several degrees below the average at night and several degrees above the average during the day.

Utah's relative humidity is much lower than coastal areas but higher than that of her sister states to the south. The relative humidity for Salt Lake City from June to September is about 40 per cent. In the spring and fall it is about 55 per cent, and in the winter the humidity ranges from 70 to 80 per cent. The Salt Lake City figures are among the highest in the state.

LIQUOR LAWS

Most popular brands of liquor are available at state liquor stores and package agencies. In addition, mini-bottles of liquor and "splits" of wine are available at many restaurants for enjoyment at mealtime. Also, there are many private liquor locker clubs in Utah. Beer is available at taverns and grocery stores throughout Utah. Its alcoholic content is 3.2 per cent.

It is against the law to bring bottles that do not have a Utah tax stamp on them from out-of-state.

FISHING REGULATIONS

Utah's general fishing season begins May 31, 1975. Some 200 waters are open year round, however.

The state's most popular and regularly taken game fish is the rainbow trout, though frequently taken from many waters are brook, native cutthroat, brown, Kokanee salmon, Mackinaw or lake trout, grayling, largemouth and white bass, channel cats and walleye pike.

Two great man-made lakes furnish spectacular fishing—they are Flaming Gorge in northeastern Utah and Lake Powell in south-central Utah. The state has an abundance of streams and still waters ranging from low valley lakes to those in high mountain country. Much of the best fishing in the state is accessible by oiled road, though back country mountain areas offer pack trips both on horseback and on foot, for those who desire them.

Non-resident licenses good year round cost $15. A five-day adult tourist license costs $5. A two-day tourist license costs

$2.50. Non-residents under 12 may fish without a license provided they angle with a licensed fisherman and their catch is counted in the adult's daily limit.

Limits are: TROUT, SALMON, 8 fish, except in some waters 6 CUTTHROAT and/or BROOK TROUT; GRAYLING, 8 fish; BONNEVILLE CISCO, 50 fish, Bear Lake only; BLACK BASS, 10 fish and WHITE BASS, no limit; WALLEYE PIKE, 6 fish except in the Provo River and channel at Willard Bay where limit is two; WHITEFISH, 20 fish; CHANNEL CATFISH, 24 fish, except in Utah Lake and Willard Bay, 16 fish; BLUEGILL, no limit except Pelican Lake, 20 fish. All other species not mentioned above, no limit.

HUNTING REGULATIONS

Utah has long been known as one of the finest deer hunting states in the nation. For many years the annual harvest has averaged 106,000 deer.

The state also has some of the best marshlands and waterfowl hunting, often found close to urban centers.

Pheasant, chukar, and Hungarian partridge, forest and sage grouse, quail, mourning dove and cottontail make up the complete bag of upland game available.

Predator shooting and hunting of non-game animals has also become very popular in Utah. Animals included in these categories are coyote, red and gray fox, bobcat, and an abundance of rabbits and varmints.

Mountain lion season: Nov. 1st–April 15. Non-resident license is $150.

A non-resident big game license costs $75 for one deer of either sex. The deer season opens the Saturday on or nearest October 20.

A waterfowl and game bird license costs $20 for non-residents. This license covers all waterfowl and game bird seasons during the year. These seasons are set at different days each year, but normally they fall as follows: mourning dove, 1 Sept.; grouse, late Sept.; waterfowl, early Oct.; pheasant, quail, early November.

Minimum age for hunting big game is 16 years, for waterfowl and game birds, 12 years.

Hunting regulations and fees are subject to change.

ROCKHOUNDING

In general, the casual rockhound or collector may collect small amounts of petrified wood, fossils, gemstones and rocks from unrestricted federal or state lands in Utah without obtaining a special permit if collection is made for personal, non-commercial purposes.

TOPAZ MOUNTAIN — approximately 11 miles W. from Jericho on unpaved road, take left fork, 40.5 miles take left fork, 1 mile take right fork, 2.7 miles, take side road on right and take left road and then keep on right trail 2 miles to camp. Topaz crystals everywhere, but small. Ahead and to the right, under the saddle is the usual hunting area. No water here.

AGATE — Jericho — US-6. There has been a great deal of agate taken from this area. You can hunt to the east into the hills.

FLOWERING OBSIDIAN — about 5 miles N. of Black Rock on Delta to Milford Road, take road east across the railroad tracks. Obsidian may be found everywhere but requires hunting.

GOLDEN LABRADORITE — about 1 mile N. of the Clear Lake railroad station, on the road from Delta to Milford, are two small cinder mounds. Cross railroad tracks and hunt in this area.

JASPER, CHALCEDONY, DINOSAUR BONE, PETRIFIED WOOD — about 5 miles S. of Woodside on US 6-50, take dirt road north and west, 4 to 6 miles. Material may be picked up on valley slopes.

BLACK AGATE — approximately 13 miles W. of Levan on U-28, take dirt road to east. At .7 to 1 mile you should be in the area. Found on ridges and in draws to right.

RED AGATE — along Colorado River, approximately 10.4 miles S.W. of Cisco on U-128. Agate on hill to right.

TRILOBITES — W. of Delta about 4 miles take well traveled road to right 38 miles to Antelope Springs. Hunt in this area.

CHERT, AGATE, ETC. — nine miles S.W. of Caineville on U-24—colored chert. Six miles E. of Caineville on U-24—agate, jasper and wood.

GEODES — at Dugway Pass. Turn off U-36 near Vernon, west over Lookout Pass. Dugway Pass to Callao (old Pony Express Trail). 4 miles W. from the top of Dugway Pass take a faint road on the north side. After crossing a big wash the road branches to the diggings. No water in area, road can be dangerous. Use more than one vehicle.

PYROPE GARNETS — in the Four Corners area you can sometimes trade with the Indians for fine stones. Examine the areas of large ant hills in this part of the country as the ants often bring both garnets and peridots to the surface.

Telephone area code for Utah is 801

SOUTHERN UTAH

One of Utah's bylines is "The National Park State." But credit Mother Nature and the Canyonlands and Color Country regions in SOUTHERN UTAH for the wonders of Arches, Bryce Canyon, Canyonlands, Capitol Reef and Zion National Parks—more national parks than any other state in just two regions of Utah.

Wind and water over millions of years eroded Southern Utah's redrock into the striking, awesome and sometimes whimsical formations. Even though the creative forces working in the parks were always the same—the end results weren't. Zion National Park, for example, exhibits 2,000 foot canyons while Bryce Canyon, and to a lesser degree Cedar Breaks National Monument, show delicate spires and towers.

The natural phenomena displayed in Color Country and Canyonlands is staggering. Consider the phenomena found in Natural Bridges National Monument or Rainbow Bridge National Monument, 309 feet high spanning a chasm 268 feet wide, or Dead Horse Point State Park where the vista includes 5,000 square miles of the Colorado Plateau.

Man-made wonders abound, too. Canyonlands and Color Country share Glen Canyon National Recreation Area which surrounds Lake Powell and its 1,800-mile shoreline—more shoreline than the entire West coast of the United States. The Glen Canyon Dam tamed the Colorado River at this point, but the river still runs wild through Cataract Canyon, Westwater Canyon or further upstream in the Green and Yampa Rivers that surge through eastern Utah. Those raging rivers provide wild sport for river runners who tempt the tons of water in rubber rafts on three and five day trips through the areas.

Southern Utah is the state's Dixie where as the old slogan says, "the summer sun spends the winter." Proof? Try skiing at Brian Head near Cedar City some winter or spring morning and getting in 18-holes of golf in St. George after lunch. Southern Utah is truly a world apart.

PUT SOME COLOR IN YOUR LIFE!

Come to Southern Utah's Color Country . . . a kaleidoscope of doing and seeing that changes by the mile. Alpine mountains, lush and waiting, with the best hunting, hiking, camping and trout fishing you ever saw. Lakes for boating, Rivers for running. The 3,000 foot majestic cliffs of Zion Park. The delicate spires and arches of Bryce Canyon. The massive cliffs of Glen Canyon, with more miles of blue-watered shoreline than the entire west coast of the U.S. A sea of pink dunes just made for bikes 'n buggies. The mysterious rock-scrawled traces of early man. The lusty annual Shakespeare Festival, a breath of Merrie Olde England. Old western movie sets and ghost towns to haunt. Plus all the good-home-cookin' restaurants and resort-style accommodations you could want. Ask us about it. You'll get some very colorful answers.

SANTA CLARA

(elev. 2,750 ft., pop. 271)

Spaniards, who traveled through here on the Old Spanish Trail during the 1830s and 40s, first applied the name Santa Clara to the stream that waters this town. The native Piutes called the creek Tonaquaint, "a stream carrying black silt." Santa Clara was settled by Jacob Hamblin and seven other missionaries to the Indians in 1854. The first Utah cotton was planted here and harvested. The settlers spun out the fibers on a spinning wheel and wove over thirty yards of cloth on a loom of the most primitive make. A sample of the cloth was sent to Brigham Young who had it carefully analyzed and tested. This eventually resulted in the organization of the Cotton Mission which established so many communities in Utah's Dixie. The export of fruit and garden crops has long been a source of income for the Santa Clara Swiss descendants.

BLANDING

Blanding may be the oldest city in the state because of the Edge of the Cedars Pueblo located here that dates from 750 A.D. This Anasazi agriculture village had a population of several hundred. Today Blanding is the center for many programs on the nearby Utah portion of the Navajo Reservation. It is here the Navajos and Anglos are working side-by-side to combine the best of each culture. Many major projects concern community life development such as education, job training, and cultural and recreational interchanges.

LOCAL POINTS OF INTEREST: Blanding is the gateway to the Trail of the Ancients. A museum of Indian culture is being developed at the Edge of the Cedars Pueblo which will be an orientation point to the Trail. Brochures are available for specific information on the Trail of the Ancients. Excellent trout fishing is found at reservoirs on the north edge of the city. An adjacent park provides picnic facilities and a public golf course. There are Indian artifacts and pottery on exhibit in several local businesses.

NEARBY POINTS OF INTEREST: West Water Ruins & Natural Bridge, Natural Bridges Nat'l Monument, Hovenweep Nat'l Monument, Causeway Road, Scenic Mt. Drive, Arch Canyon, Dark Canyon, Lake Powell's Hall's Crossing Marina and Hite Marina, Rainbow Bridge Nat'l Monument, Four Corners.

Three National Monuments
Two National Parks

ONE Great Vacationland

You can save time, money and energy when you come to Canyonlands, USA, southeastern Utah's family vacationland. Here in this one spectacular area are more National Parks, National Monuments, State Parks, National Forests and National Recreation Areas than anyplace else in the world. And, you can enjoy it all without traveling hundreds of miles when you get here.

In fact, you can enjoy much of Canyonlands without driving at all: discover the joy of hiking and exploring, just off the road or deep in the back country; take a river raft float trip down the Colorado, Green or San Juan Rivers, try fishing along mountain streams or on gigantic Lake Powell; go camping and picnicking, horseback riding, swimming and golfing. You'll soon find that there is as much to do as to see . . . without your car. You can even leave your car at home. Just send for information on Canyonlands RAIL, AIR or BUS PACKAGE TOURS.

This year, enjoy a great vacation in ONE place — Canyonlands, USA.

MONTICELLO

(elev. 7,000 ft., pop. 1,431)

Monticello, nestled at the base of the Blue Mountains, has a cool climate and warm welcome for visitors. Monticello is the hub of activity for the tourist, whether he be sight-seer, deer hunter or rockhound. Monticello is also the county seat of San Juan county and, therefore, the starting place for most people who visit the Four Corners area of the southern entrance to the Canyonlands National Park.

MONUMENT VALLEY/OLJATO AREA

Oljato, like many other places on the Navajo reservation, is an area rather than a town. It was here in 1907 the John Weatherills established the first trading post in the northwestern part of Navajo Land. Oljato is at the western end of the world-famous Monument Valley where many movies have been filmed. Eleven miles east on a maintained dirt road is Harry Goulding's trading post and lodge and 4 miles farther on is the Monument Valley Navajo Tribal Park. Many of the Navajo in the Oljato Monument Valley area still live in hogans, although new houses are being built. Here large flocks of sheep may be seen. Native handicraft jewelry, rugs, baskets and pottery are available at the trading posts and the visitors' center at the park headquarters. Highway 163 bisects the area.

NEARBY POINTS OF INTEREST: Monument Valley Navajo Tribal Park, Hoskinini Mesa, Lake Powell, Piute Farms and many prehistoric ruins.

ACCOMMODATIONS: 1 motel and campground at Gouldings, campsites at Park Headquarters.

AUTOMOBILE SERVICES: Gas and oil available at trading post.

CENTRAL UTAH

CENTRAL UTAH was once the favorite haunt of legendary bad guy Butch Cassidy who took his pals on expeditions through what is now Castle Country and Panoramaland. But Cassidy is just part of the history and drama permeating this startling piece of Utah.

Panoramaland got its name from the panoramic views along scenic roads like Skyline Drive wandering along the spine of the 9,000 to 11,000 foot Wasatch Plateau, or along Utah 11 through Maple Canyon.

Castle Country is the other extreme, featuring geological phenomena at every turn in every road. For instance, one tiny area near Interstate 70 called Goblin Valley was only discovered 30 years ago and is still not fully explored.

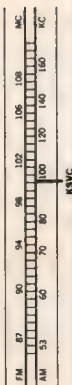

Panoramaland shares much of the pioneer history of the state with the Salt Lake Valley. In Fillmore for instance, U.S. 91 runs past the original capitol building of Utah, abandoned in favor of Salt Lake City and its growing population in 1856. And Mormon settlers in Manti carved a temple out of stone as a striking monument to their faith.

Rockhounds and geologists have long roamed over the Topaz Mountains west of Delta picking at one of the world's greatest deposits of topaz, amber and other gems. The residents of Panoramaland are even willing to take you along through those same mountains in pursuit of the deer and other big game that flourish in this part of the state.

Both regions are hospitality conscious. In May in Castle Country, the entire boating population of this part of the state turns out for the annual Friendship Cruise that moves down the Green River and back up the Colorado with a flotilla of boats from every state in the Union.

The future looks diamond-bright in Castle Country. Coal, this country's most abundant energy source, is pocketed in one of the largest deposits in the world near Price in the Book Cliffs. And that same stretch of cliffs is home for large herds of deer that attract thousands of hunters each fall.

Castle Country

Written by wind and water. Where tens of millions of years of upheaval and erosion have created a fairyland world of sandstone gnomes and gargoyles. Where hidden canyons and forested mountains abound. (Former hiding places for Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid.) And there's more—fishable streams, boatable waterways, trails to explore, jeep roads to follow, white water rivers to run and sights to see.

You can't possibly see it all, but try!

Goblin Valley, Castle Country.

NORTH CENTRAL UTAH

Dinosaurland, Mountainland and Great Salt Lake Country fill the NORTH CENTRAL quarter of Utah. But the region presents a definite problem for visitors—there's not enough time to enjoy all of it.

Great Salt Lake Country stretches from the isolation of Great Salt Lake Desert and the Bonneville Speedway on the West to the metropolitan environs and ski areas near Salt Lake City. Brigham Young's 1847 pronouncement, "This Is The Place," is becoming increasingly more appropriate today.

Salt Lake City's cosmopolitan quality is mellowed by its pioneer heritage. Its wide, clean streets radiate from Temple Square—a walled city block framing the Temple, Tabernacle, Museum, Assembly Hall, Information Bureau and Visitor's Center. Excluding the Temple, the Square, Tabernacle Choir and organ recitals and rehearsals are free and open to the public.

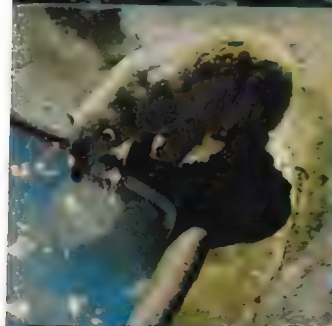

Mountainland holds a unique allegiance with the United States Bicentennial Celebration. Fathers Escalante and Dominguez explored the Utah valley in 1776 and wrote about the fertile pastures and farmlands which still exist. Other livelihoods also have prospered as well.

Mountainland is sandwiched between Great Salt Lake Country and Dinosaurland. The title is appropriate with 48% of the land area in Wasatch, Summit and Uinta counties either in the national forest or state park systems.

Just off Interstate 80, Park City preserves all the ballyhoo of a turn-of-the-century mining town. But today the town's income is reaped from on top of its mountains...Utah's incomparable powder snow. One of the town's two ski areas, Park City Resort, is the national training center for the U.S. Olympic Ski Team.

Utah's third largest city, Provo, is down that same Provo Canyon, as is Robert Redford's Sundance ski resort. In Provo, check for "Y" Mountain, the unmistakable landmark for the nation's largest private church-affiliated educational institution, Brigham Young University.

No university degree is required to appreciate Utah's Dinosaurland. Amateur or professional geologists, sportsmen, river runners, archeologists and naturalists appreciate Dinosaurland. Contained within this three-county region are some remarkable superlatives: Utah's highest mountains and the state's oldest geologic zone. And add to that Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area, Dinosaur National Monument, Ashley National Forest, Natural History State Museum, the Yampa and Green Rivers, plus the Ute Indian Reservation and the Utes' own Bottle Hollow Resort, a multi-million dollar resort complex near Ft. Duchesne.

Come home, to Mountainland.

Kickoff your Mountainland stay with a visit to Park City. Take a leisurely stroll down Main Street. Go ahead. Step inside one of those century-old shops and step back to the 1860s when this mining town (now turned resort) made millionaires of 27 lucky men.

After you've tasted enough of Park City's old-time flavor, a 15 minute drive brings you to picture-pretty Heber Valley. The best way to see this countryside is aboard the Heber Creeper, a stream-powered tourist railway that will introduce you to Wasatch Mountain State Park, Deer Creek Reservoir and Provo Canyon.

In nearby Midway, stop for a tasty homestyle meal, a horse backride or lodging at the Homestead.

As you leave Heber Valley and skirt the edge of Deer Creek State Park, you'll begin the descent of picturesque Provo Canyon. Stop for some fishing, or drive the Alpine Scenic Drive to actor Robert Redford's Sundance Resort and famed Timpanogos Cave National Monument, or stop at the misty Bridal Veil Falls cascading down the canyon wall.

Once in Provo, visit Brigham Young University—the largest private religious institution—and see the Provo Mormon Temple and Utah Lake, the largest natural fresh water lake in Utah.

Now your Mountainland tour takes you to Springville. The Springville Art Museum boasts a fine permanent collection of paintings and sculptures.

NORTHERN UTAH

Passwords for northernmost Utah are Bridgerland and the Golden Spike Empire.

Bridgerland's namesake, Jim Bridger, tracked and trapped his way through what is now the Cache National Forest. It was the same Jim Bridger who, according to folklore, offered $1,000 for the first ear of corn produced from the arid Great Salt Lake Valley by Mormon pioneers.

Travel Bridgerland via U.S. 89 or 91 plus well-maintained state roads. Once you're settled, discover your surroundings. Here's a tranquil blend of pastoral farmland, delightful canyons and the 10,000 foot Wasatch Mountain Range.

Utah's fourth largest city, Logan, is home for Utah State University—the West's first land grant college. Logan's Mormon Temple and Tabernacle symbolize religious reverence.

Two state parks in Bridgerland attract the water worshippers. Utah 242 passes Hyrum Reservoir State Park. And Bear Lake State Park lies east of Logan on U.S. 89 on the shore of crystal blue, 7 mile by 30 mile Bear Lake. Swimming, boating, golf, waterskiing and sailing are available at nearby Sweetwater Resort. En route to Bear Lake, don't miss Logan Canyon or its fishing, camping and dramatic scenery. The Jardine Juniper testifies to Logan Canyon's serenity. At 3,500 years, it is the oldest Juniper in the world.

From the East steamed engine "119" and from the West came "The Jupiter." The trains met in 1869 to help drive the Golden Spike which tied together the rails joining both coasts for the first time. The history of the Golden Spike Empire is also tied with pioneer trappers and explorers... Jim Bridger, Peter Ogden and Etienne Provost.

There are big towns (Ogden is Utah's second largest), small towns and places with no towns at all in the Golden Spike Empire. Ogden huddles next to the Wasatch Range...yet close to the vastness of the Great Salt Lake.

Ogden's Weber State College, Municipal Gardens, Mormon Temple and John M. Browning Arms Museum still haven't stolen all the limelight from smaller towns. For example, Corinne's railroading museum maintains the "hell-on-wheels" flavor which once engulfed the turn of the century town.

Golden Spike is an area of more than history. Recreational attractions include Snow Basin, Nordic Valley and Powder Mountain Ski resorts, three major water sports areas, Lagoon amusement park and Great Salt Lake State Park.
